American Literature

Cultural Influences of Early to Contemporary Voices

James P. Stobaugh

HIGH SCHOOL LEVEL STUDENT
First printing: November 2012

Copyright © 2012 by James P. Stobaugh. All rights reserved. No part of this book may be used or reproduced in any manner whatsoever without written permission of the publisher, except in the case of brief quotations in articles and reviews. For information write:

Master Books®, P.O. Box 726, Green Forest, AR 72638

Master Books® is a division of the New Leaf Publishing Group, Inc.

ISBN: 978-1-61458-266-3 (ebook)
Library of Congress Catalog Number: 2012951014

Cover design by Diana Bogardus.
Interior design by Terry White.

Unless otherwise noted, all images are from shutterstock.com, Library of Congress (LOC-image), and Wikimedia Commons. All images used under the Creative Commons Attribution-Share Alike 3.0 Unported license (CC-BY-SA-3.0) are noted; license details available at creativecommons.org/licenses/by-sa/3.0/. Other photos are public domain (PD-US).

Please consider requesting that a copy of this volume be purchased by your local library system.

Printed in the United States of America

Please visit our website for other great titles:
www.masterbooks.net

For information regarding author interviews, please contact the publicity department at (870) 438-5288

Dedication

This Book is gratefully dedicated to Karen and our four children: Rachel, Jessica, Timothy, and Peter.

He has given us a ministry of reconciliation . . . (2 Corinthians 5:18).
Contents

Using Your Student Textbook ...................................................................................................................... 6
Preface .......................................................................................................................................................... 8

1. Worldview Formation ............................................................................................................................ 9
2. The New Land to 1750: Puritanism and Native American Voices .............................................................. 22
   The Iroquois Constitution Iroquois Tribe
3. The New Land to 1750: Puritanism ........................................................................................................ 43
   Religious Affections, Jonathan Edwards; “Diary Entries,” Esther Edwards; Poems by Anne Bradstreet
4. The Revolutionary Period, 1750-1800 (Part 1) ....................................................................................... 56
   The Autobiography of Benjamin Franklin, Benjamin Franklin
5. The Revolutionary Period, 1750-1800 (Part 2) ....................................................................................... 65
   Poems by Phillis Wheatley; Speech in the Virginia Convention, Patrick Henry; The Declaration of Independence, Thomas Jefferson; Letter to Her Daughter from the New White House, Abigail Adams
   “The Fall of the House of Usher,” and “The Tell-Tale Heart,” Edgar Allan Poe
   The Scarlet Letter and “Birthmark,” Nathaniel Hawthorne
   Poems by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, Oliver Wendell Holmes, James Russell Lowell, John
   Greenleaf Whittier, and Emily Dickinson
    Selected Poems, Ralph Waldo Emerson
    Walden, Henry David Thoreau
    Billy Budd, Herman Melville
13. Division, War, and Reconciliation, 1855-1865 (Part 1) ......................................................................... 219
    “O Captain, My Captain!” Walt Whitman; “Go Down Moses,” “Deep River,” Roll Jordan, Roll,”
    “Swing Low, Sweet Chariot;” Negro Spirituals; “The Gettysburg Address,” Abraham Lincoln;
    “I will Fight No More Forever,” Chief Joseph
14. Division, War, and Reconciliation, 1855-1865 (Part 2) ................................................................. 231
   Narrative of the Life of Frederick Douglass, Frederick Douglass

15. Realism, Naturalism, and the Frontier, 1865-1915 (Part 1) ................................................................. 247
   The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn, Mark Twain

16. Realism, Naturalism, and the Frontier, 1865-1915 (Part 2) ................................................................. 259
   The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn, Mark Twain

17. Realism, Naturalism, and the Frontier, 1865-1915 (Part 3) ................................................................. 271
   Red Badge of Courage, Stephen Crane

18. Realism, Naturalism, and the Frontier, 1865-1915 (Part 4) ................................................................. 289
   Red Badge of Courage, Stephen Crane

19. Realism, Naturalism, and the Frontier, 1865-1915 (Part 5) ................................................................. 321
   “The Outcasts of Poker Flat,” Bret Harte; “The Story of an Hour,” Kate Chopin; “Richard Cory,” Edwin Arlington Robinson; “Lucinda Matlock,” Edgar Lee Masters

20. The Modern Age, 1915-1946: Late Romanticism/ Naturalism (Part 1) .................................................. 337
   Ethan Frome, Edith Wharton

21. The Modern Age, 1915-1946: Late Romanticism/ Naturalism (Part 2) .................................................. 353
   20th Century Poetry

22. The Modern Age, 1915-1946: Late Romanticism/ Naturalism (Part 3) .................................................. 369
   A Farewell to Arms, Ernest Hemingway

23. The Modern Age, 1915-1946: Late Romanticism/ Naturalism (Part 4) .................................................. 381
   Their Eyes Were Watching God, Zora Neale Hurston

24. The Modern Age, 1915-1946: Late Romanticism/ Naturalism (Part 5) .................................................. 392
   The Unvanquished, William Faulkner

25. The Modern Age, 1915-1946: Late Romanticism/ Naturalism (Part 6) .................................................. 413
   The Pearl, John Steinbeck

   20th Century Drama: The Emperor Jones, Eugene Gladstone O’Neill

27. The Modern Age, 1946-1960: Realism/ Naturalism (Part 2) ................................................................. 435
   20th Century Drama: The Little Foxes, Lillian Hellman

   20th Century Drama: The Glass Menagerie, Tennessee Williams

29. The Modern Age, 1946-1960: Realism/ Naturalism (Part 4) ................................................................. 455
   20th Century Drama: The Glass Menagerie, Tennessee Williams

30. The Modern Age, 1946-1960: Realism/ Naturalism (Part 5) ................................................................. 468
   The Crucible, Arthur Miller

31. Contemporary Writers, 1960-Present (Part 1) ....................................................................................... 481
   A Separate Peace, John Knowles
The following is a list of additional books and texts not included within the study that are needed for this course. It is strongly suggested that students read most, if not all these titles during the summer before taking this course. Most will be available at local libraries or as free downloads at The Online Books Page (online-books.library.upenn.edu/lists.html), Project Gutenberg (www.gutenberg.org/wiki/Main_Page), or Bartleby (www.bartleby.com/).

Of Plimoth Plantations by William Bradford
Religious Affections by Jonathan Edwards
The Autobiography of Benjamin Franklin by Benjamin Franklin
Narrative of the Life of Frederick Douglass by Frederick Douglass
The Scarlet Letter by Nathaniel Hawthorne
The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn by Mark Twain
A Farewell to Arms by Ernest Hemingway
The Red Badge of Courage by Stephen Crane
The Unvanquished by William Faulkner
The Pearl by John Steinbeck
Walden by Henry David Thoreau
Billy Budd by Herman Melville
The Emperor Jones by Eugene Gladstone O’Neill
The Little Foxes by Lillian Hellman
The Glass Menagerie by Tennessee Williams
The Crucible by Arthur Miller
Ethan Frome by Edith Wharton
Cold Sassy Tree by Olive Ann Burns
Their Eyes Were Watching God by Zora Neale Hurston
The Chosen by Chaim Potok
Using Your Student Textbook

How this course has been developed:

1. Chapters: This course has 34 chapters (representing 34 weeks of study).
2. Lessons: Each chapter has five lessons, taking approximately 45 to 60 minutes each.
3. Weekly assignments: The final lesson of the week includes an essay and a test.
4. Student responsibility: Responsibility to complete this course is on the student. Students must read ahead in order to stay on schedule with the readings. Independence is strongly encouraged in this course, which was designed for the student to practice independent learning.
5. Grading: Turn in your assignments daily or weekly to your educator/parent. Answers are available in the teacher guide.

Throughout this course you will find the following components:

1. Chapter Learning Objectives: Always read the “First Thoughts” and “Chapter Learning Objectives” in order to comprehend the scope of the material to be covered in a particular week.
2. History Connections are shown on the chapter introduction page in order to help a student study these texts consecutively, exploring literature and history in unison. (The American, British, and World History curriculum is also written by James Stobaugh and published by Master Books*.)
3. Daily warm-ups: You should write or give oral responses for the daily warm-ups to your educator/parent. These are not necessarily meant to be evaluated, but should stimulate discussion.
4. Concept builders: You should complete a daily concept builder. These activities take 15 minutes or less and emphasize a particular concept that is vital to that particular chapter topic.
5. Assigned readings: Remember to read ahead on the required literary material for this course. Students should plan to read some of the required literature the summer before the course.
6. Weekly essays: You will be writing at least one essay per week, depending on the level of accomplishment you and your educator/parent decide upon. These are available in the teacher guide and online.
7. Weekly tests: These are available in the teacher guide and online.

What the student will need each day:

1. Notepad/computer: for writing assignments.
3. As often as you can — hopefully daily — keep a prayer journal.
Increasing Your Vocabulary

Part of the reason for reading so many challenging literary works is for you to increase your functional vocabulary. Your best means of increasing vocabulary is through reading a vast amount of classical, well-written literary works. While reading these works, you should harvest as many unknown words as you can, and try to use five new words in each essay you write.

Create 3x5 Vocabulary Cards

When you meet a strange word for the first time,

- Do your best to figure out the word in context,
- Check your guess by looking in the dictionary,
- Write a sentence with the word in it.

Use the illustration above to formulate your vocabulary cards of new words.

About the Author

James P. Stobaugh and his wife, Karen, have four homeschooled adult children. They have a growing ministry, For Such a Time As This Ministries, committed to challenging this generation to change its world for Christ.

Dr. Stobaugh is an ordained pastor, a certified secondary teacher, and a SAT coach. His academic credentials include: BA, cum laude Vanderbilt University; Teacher Certification, Peabody College for Teachers; MA, Rutgers University; MDiv, Princeton Theological Seminary; Merrill Fellow, Harvard University; DMin Gordon Conwell Seminary.

Dr. Stobaugh has written articles for magazines: Leadership, Presbyterian Survey, Princeton Spire, Ministries Today, and Pulpit Digest. Dr. Stobaugh’s books include the SAT Preparation Course for the Christian Student, the ACT Preparation Course for the Christian Student, the Skills for Literary Analysis, the Christian Reading Companion for 50 Classics, as well as the American History, British History, and World History high school curriculum.
Preface

American Literature is a rhetoric-level course. Two things are distinctive about rhetoric-level courses: they are content-driven and they presume higher-level thinking. In most cases, you are going to have to read in excess of 200 pages per chapter. Therefore, it is highly advisable that you begin reading the material during the summer prior to beginning this course.

In any event, you must read the whole book/literary work before the lesson begins. Sometimes this is no big deal (e.g., reading Phillis Wheatley’s poetry). In other cases it will take you more than a week to read the assigned text (e.g., The Scarlet Letter, Nathaniel Hawthorne).

By now you should already know how to do basic literary criticism. If you are worried, don’t be. You will review how to do literary analysis as the course progresses. Literary analysis questions are the most often asked questions and they fall under the three main types of questions in the text: critical thinking, biblical application, and enrichment.

Literature is defined in Merriam Webster’s Collegiate Dictionary (10th ed., 1993) as “writings in prose or verse: especially having excellence of form or expression and expressing ideas of permanent or universal interest.”

The person who examines, interprets, and analyzes literature is a critic. That is your job. A critic is a guide to the reader, not a prophet or a therapist. While it is the critic’s right to express his preferences, and even his privilege to influence others, it is not his job to tell the reader what to like or not like. However, the critic is a helper, a guide helping the reader to better understand the author’s intention and art. In fact, the critic is concerned about the structure, sound, and meaning of the literary piece. These structures are described as genres: narrative prose, essays, poetry, and drama.

God is raising a mighty generation! You will be the culture-creators of the next century. You are a special generation, a special people. My prayer for each student who reads this course is:

I kneel before the Father, from whom his whole family in heaven and on earth derives its name. I pray that out of his glorious riches he may strengthen you with power through his Spirit in your inner being, so that Christ may dwell in your hearts through faith. And I pray that you, being rooted and established in love, may have power, together with all the saints, to grasp how wide and long and high and deep is the love of Christ, and to know this love that surpasses knowledge — that you may be filled to the measure of all the fullness of God. Now to him who is able to do immeasurably more than all we ask or imagine, according to his power that is at work within us, to him be glory in the church and in Christ Jesus throughout all generations, for ever and ever! Amen (Eph. 3:14–21).
Chapter 1

Worldview Formation

First Thoughts From the beginning, America was an evangelical Christian nation — it built its universities to train a Christian leadership cadre, for it earnestly sought to be governed by and to have its culture created by evangelical Christians. The now rapid retreat from that sacred beginning is perhaps the key to understanding the American experience.

Chapter Learning Objectives In chapter 1 we examine worldviews and grasp the import of being in a culture war. For the Christian believer, there is no middle ground anymore. We are in a war. This chapter examines seven worldviews and gives clues on how we can discern these worldviews in culture. You will learn to articulate your own worldview as you evaluate the veracity of other worldviews.

As a result of this chapter study you will be able to . . .

1. Compare several worldviews.
2. Compare the worldviews of John Smith and William Bradford.
3. Discuss if Old Testament law should have literal application to today’s society.
4. Discern the worldviews of several television commercials.

Weekly Essay Options: Begin on page 274 of the Teacher Guide.

History connections: American History chapter 1, “Natives of the New World”
The word “worldview” comes from the German word “weltanschauung,” which is literally “world perception.” One’s worldview is formed early on by the values and principles of family and friends. It can be shaped further by peers, by personal experiences or observations, by social-religious organizations, as well as by the culture and media. Everyone has a worldview that reflects his or her personal bias in regard to the world based on both facts and personal opinion.

Throughout this course and your educational career you will be challenged to analyze the worldviews of many writers. You will be asked to articulate and defend your own worldview against all sorts of assaults. William Bradford, for instance, has a worldview that is radically different from many writers you have read and hopefully similar to yours. What is Bradford’s worldview? His worldview is obviously Christian theistic. For now, though, it is important that you pause and examine several worldviews that you will encounter in literature and the arts. You will then need to articulate your own worldview.

Developing a worldview: Consider how each of the following areas influences your personal belief system:

- Culture: Historic and philosophical movements
- Socio-economic: Social and financial status
- Education: Ideas taught on a regular basis
- Media: What one reads, watches or listens to
- Peers: Those one shares the most time with
- Family: Personal beliefs that are shared or taught
Assignments

- Warm-up: Who is your favorite author and what do you think formed his or her worldview?
- Student should complete Concept Builder 1-A.
- Students should review the required reading(s) before the assigned chapter begins.
- Teachers shall assign the required essay. The rest of the essays can be outlined, answered with shorter answers, discussed, or skipped.

CONCEPT BUILDER 1-A

My Worldview

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Outline a worldview for yourself.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Authority — Is the Bible important to you? Do you obey God and other authorities — your parents — even when doing so is uncomfortable?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pleasure — What do you really enjoy doing? Does it please God?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Justice — What are the consequences of our actions? Is there some sort of judgment? Do bad people suffer? Why do good people suffer?</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
LESSON 2

Worldviews Review

From the time of Aristotle and Plato a panoply of worldviews evolved into four main epochs.

Classical Theism (to A.D. 500)

Christian Theism (500-1500)

Modernism: Naturalism and Realism (1500-1900)

Post-Modernism: Existentialism and Absurdism (1900-Present)

The following are characteristics of each epoch:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Epoch</th>
<th>Characteristic</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Classical Theism</td>
<td>Pernicious gods involved in human affairs</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Christian Theism</td>
<td>Loving God involved in human affairs</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Modernism</td>
<td>Faith in science</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Post-Modernism</td>
<td>Faith in experience; suspicious of science</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The four epochs above manifested seven basic worldviews. The worldviews are best discerned through works of art and of literature. The worldview of an artist/writer is a reflection of how the author expresses his views on essential issues like God, man, and morality.

Theism: Christian theism advances a worldview that there is an omnipotent God who has authored an inspired, authoritative work called the Bible, upon whose precepts mankind should base its society.

Deism: Deism advances a worldview that accepts the notion that there is an authoritative, inspired source from which mankind should base its society (i.e., the Bible). Likewise, the deist is certain that there was once an omnipotent God. However, once the world was created, that same omnipotent God chose to absent Himself from His creation. The world, then, is like a clock. It was once created by an intelligent process. However, now the Creator is absent, leaving mankind on its own to figure out how the clock works and go on living.
Romanticism: A natural companion to deism was rationalism. Rationalism (e.g., John Locke's philosophy) invited the deist to see mankind as a "chalkboard" on which was written experience that ultimately created a personality. Thus, rationalists/deists were fond of speaking of "inalienable right" or "common sense." The romantic (in America the romantic would be called "the transcendentalist") took issue with deism and theism. To the romantic, nature was god. Nature — an undefined indigenous, omnipotent presence — was very good. Original sin was man's separation from nature. In fact, the degree to which mankind returned to nature would determine his goodness and effectiveness. Thus, a man like Henry David Thoreau lived a year on Walden Pond so that he could find his God. In The Deerslayer, by James Fenimore Cooper, the protagonist is safe while he is on a lake separated from evil mankind. Only when he participates in human society is he in trouble. The romantic was naturally suspicious of theism because theism appeared to be dogmatic and close-minded. The romantics had confessions, but they had no dogma. Deism also bothered the romantics. Romanticism emphasized the subjective; deism emphasized the objective. In the romantic novel Frankenstein, the deist/rationalist Dr. Frankenstein creates a monster. Dr. Frankenstein, with disastrous results, turns his back on the subjective and tries to use science to create life.

Naturalism: Naturalism was inclined to agree with romanticism's criticism of theism and deism, but did not believe in a benevolent nature. In fact, nature, to the naturalist, was malevolent, mischievous, and unpredictable. Mankind, as it were, lost control of the universe and the person who had control did not really care much for his creation. Theism, of course, was absurd. How could any sane person who experienced World War I believe in a loving, living God? Deism was equally wrong. God was not absent — he was present in an unpredictable, at times evil, way. Romanticism was on the right track, but terribly naive. God and His creation were certainly not “good” in any sense of the word. Nature was evil. Naturalism embraced a concept of fate similar to that held by the Greeks. In Homer's The Iliad, for instance, the characters were subject to uncontrolled fate and pernicious gods and goddesses who inflicted terrible and good things on mankind with no apparent design or reason. No, to the naturalist, God was at best absent or wimpish; at worst, He was malevolent.

Realism: Realism was philosophically akin to naturalism. In a sense, naturalism was a natural companion to realism. Realism was different from naturalism in degree, not in substance. Realism argued that if people were honest they would admit that God was not present at all. If there was anything worth embracing, it was reality. Realism advanced an in-your-face view of life. Realists prided themselves in "telling it like it is." They entered the cosmic arena and let the chips fall where they may. They shared the same criticisms of views that the naturalists held.

Absurdism: Absurdism certainly believed that realism was on track. Where realism erred, however, was its propensity to see meaning in life. Mind you, the meaning was tied to things one could see and feel — not in things that were abstract or immutable — but the realist still sought some meaning in this life. The absurdist abandoned all hope of finding meaning in life and embraced a sort of nihilism. The absurdist was convinced that everything was meaningless and absurd. The subjectivity of a romantic was appealing to the absurd. However, even that implied that something was transcendent — a desire — and the absurdist would have nothing to do with that. Billy Pilgrim, a protagonist in one of the absurdist Kurt Vonnegut Jr's novels, became “unhinged from time” and “wandered around in the cosmos. Things without meaning happened to him whose life had no meaning. Everything was absurd.
Existentialism: Existentialism stepped outside the debate of meaning altogether. Existentialists argued that the quest was futile. The only thing that mattered was subjective feeling. “Experience” was a god at whose feet the existentialist worshiped. Romanticism was on the right track in that it invited mankind to explore subjectivity. Where it erred was when it refused to give up the deity. Naturalism was an anomaly. It was too busy arguing with the cosmos to see that reality was in human desire not in providence. The degree to which mankind was to discover and experience these desires determined the degree to which people participated in the divine.

Assignments

- Warm-up: Pretend a four-year-old family member has just watched a cartoon with too much violence. He/she is very sad. What do you say to him/her?
- Student should complete Concept Builder 1-B.
- Student should review reading(s) from next chapter.
- Student should outline essay due at the end of the week.
- Per teacher instructions, students may answer orally, in a group setting, the essays that are not assigned as formal essays.

Encourage your family to write a joint worldview statement. Here is an example of the author’s family worldview statement.

The Stobaugh Family Worldview Statement

We are called to live radical Christian lives as if we belong to God and not to ourselves (Gal. 2:20). Therefore, we will seek the Lord with all our heart — knowing He will be found. We will have a heart for the lost. He has given us the ministry of reconciliation; indeed, our family is an image of this reconciliation (Rom. 8; 2 Cor. 5). We will be His ambassadors. He has given us a family to raise and people to influence for Him. We want to be world changers. The job(s) that God has called us to do is requiring all we have and it is worthy of our best and total efforts.

In summary, henceforth the Stobaughts shall make decisions based on this mission statement — not on circumstances. Every new job or activity must further this mission statement or be rejected.

My Family Worldview Statement

- General Statements:
- Specific Statements:
- Our Jobs (or Callings):
- Summary:
The following is a summary of early worldview philosophies:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Greek Mythology</th>
<th>The Greeks introduced the idea that the universe was orderly, that man's senses were valid, and, as a consequence, that man's proper purpose was to live his own life to the fullest.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>The Pythagoreans</td>
<td>Phythagoras was the first philosopher to require some standard of behavior from his followers. One can imagine what a novel and important step this was — that a religion would require a commitment from its adherents.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ionian School</td>
<td>The Ionian fascination with the physical world anticipated later discussions in Western philosophy.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Eleatic School</td>
<td>The Eleatic School argued that reality was indivisible and endless.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Pluralists</td>
<td>With no outside force in place, by chance the universe evolved from chaos to structure, and vice versa, in an eternal cycle.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Sophists</td>
<td>Ethical rules needed to be followed only when it was to one's practical advantage to do so. Goodness, morality, and ethics were a reflection of culture rather than vice versa.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Socrates</td>
<td>For the first time, the importance of human language was advanced by a philosopher. The intellectual basis of virtue was stressed, identifying virtue with wisdom.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Plato</td>
<td>“Love,” to Plato, was a “form” from which virtue flowed.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aristotle</td>
<td>Aristotle was the first agnostic. Aristotle argued that reality lay in empirical, measurable knowledge. Aristotle, for the first time, discussed the gods as if they were quantified entities. He spoke about them as if they were not present.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cynicism</td>
<td>For the first time, philosophers began to talk about the individual in earnest, as if he were a subject to be studied.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Skepticism</td>
<td>Skepticism maintained that human beings could know nothing of the real nature of things, and that consequently the wise person would give up trying to know anything.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Epicurianism</td>
<td>The aim of human life, Epicurus claimed, was to achieve maximum pleasure with the least effort and risk.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Stoicism</td>
<td>Stoicism celebrated the human spirit and it became the measuring rod against which all social and religious institutions were measured.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Neoplatonism</td>
<td>Neoplatonism dared to speak of a religious experience as a philosophical phenomenon.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Augustine</td>
<td>Augustine effectively articulated a theology and worldview for the Church as it journeyed into the inhospitable, post-Christian, barbarian era.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Scholasticism</td>
<td>Scholasticism, with varying degrees of success, attempted to use natural human reason — in particular, the philosophy and science of Aristotle — to understand the metaphysical content of Christian revelation.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Assignments

- Warm-up: Some artists claim that obscenity is necessary to the “artistic effect.” Is there such a thing as “necessary obscenity”?
- Students should complete Concept Builder 1-C.
- Students should write rough drafts of assigned essay.
- The teacher may correct rough drafts.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Value</th>
<th>Myself</th>
<th>My Parents</th>
<th>My Grandparents</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Psychology</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Money</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Lawrence Welk Show</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Winning sports teams</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Snow days</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Opinions of friends</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Church/temple/other religious events</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vacation</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A rock/hip hop/rap concert</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Watching a ballet</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Visiting relatives</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Reading good books</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Watching television</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Doing chores/jobs</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Easter</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Being honest</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Elves</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
LESSON 4

Culture Wars: Part Two

The following is a summary of more modern worldview philosophies:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name</th>
<th>Years</th>
<th>Summary</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Erasmus</td>
<td>1466–1536</td>
<td>Erasmus, for the first time, discussed things like happiness as being centered in the self or personhood of the man or woman. Happiness was based on some narcissist notions of self-love.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Michel de Montaigne</td>
<td>1533–1592</td>
<td>Montaigne re-introduced Greek skepticism to Western culture.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Frances Bacon</td>
<td>1561–1626</td>
<td>Bacon advanced vigorously the idea that reasoning must triumph over theology.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Thomas Hobbes</td>
<td>1588–1679</td>
<td>Hobbes was one of the first modern Western thinkers to provide a secular justification for political power.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rene Descartes</td>
<td>1596–1650</td>
<td>After Descartes, mankind replaced God as the center of the universe in the minds of many. This was an ominous moment in Western culture.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Benedictus de Spinoza</td>
<td>1732–1677</td>
<td>Spinoza argued that human morality arose from self-interest.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>John Locke</td>
<td>1632–1704</td>
<td>Locke believed in reasoning and common sense, rather than in metaphysics.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>G. W. Leibniz</td>
<td>1646–1716</td>
<td>Leibniz believed in a God who created a world separate from His sovereignty.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>George Berkeley</td>
<td>1685–1753</td>
<td>Berkeley called &quot;intuition&quot; the voice of God to mankind.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Davie Hume</td>
<td>1711–1726</td>
<td>Hume, for the first time in Western history, seriously suggested that there was no necessary connection between cause and effect.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Immanuel Kant</td>
<td>1724–1804</td>
<td>Kant argued that reality was experience. If one could not experience something with his senses, then it was not real.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jean Jacques Rousseau</td>
<td>1712–1778</td>
<td>Rousseau advocated one of the first “back-to-nature” movements.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>William Godwin</td>
<td>1756–1836</td>
<td>The notion that there were individual rights, or a codex of governing laws, was anathema to Godwin.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Soren Kierkegaard</td>
<td>1813–1855</td>
<td>Kierkegaard explained life in terms of logical necessity; a means of avoiding choice and responsibility.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>G.W.F. Hegel</td>
<td>1770–1831</td>
<td>Truth had no application if there were not opposites warring for its reality.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Name</td>
<td>Years</td>
<td>Philosophy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>----------------------------</td>
<td>---------</td>
<td>-----------------------------------------------------------------------------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Karl Marx</td>
<td>1818–183</td>
<td>To the Hegelian Marx, Christianity was a fairy tale created to placate weak people.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pierre Joseph Proudhon</td>
<td>1809–1865</td>
<td>Proudhon instituted the last serious philosophical attempt to undermine the human will as a determining factor in human decision-making.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Arthur Schopenhauer</td>
<td>1788–1860</td>
<td>The human will, with all its chauvinism and narcissism, was the most powerful human impulse.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Herbert Spencer</td>
<td>1820–1903</td>
<td>Spencer argued that in biological sciences and in the social sciences the fittest and the strongest survived.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Frederick Nietzsche</td>
<td>1844–1890</td>
<td>Nietzsche believed that the collapse of the religious impulse left a huge vacuum. The history of modern times is in great part the history of how that vacuum is filled.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Martin Heidegger</td>
<td>1889–1976</td>
<td>The meaning of the world must be discovered outside human experience.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jean Paul Sartre</td>
<td>1905–1980</td>
<td>People exist in a world of their own making.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Simone De Beauvoir</td>
<td>1906–1986</td>
<td>Beauvoir was an advocate of “free love” and completely rejected the biblical understanding of marriage, which she saw as an oppressive institution.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>John Dewey</td>
<td>1859–1952</td>
<td>Truth to Dewey was a reflection of circumstances and contingencies.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bertrand Russell</td>
<td>1872–1970</td>
<td>If an actual event could not be quantified or repeated, then it was not real.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>John Stuart Mill</td>
<td>1806–1873</td>
<td>To Mill, the individual and his needs were paramount.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Max Weber</td>
<td>1864–1920</td>
<td>The notion that God was pleased with hard work and frugal living assured a healthy maturation of society.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ludwig Wittgenstein</td>
<td>1889–1951</td>
<td>If a person could not speak it, it was not real.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Richard Rorty</td>
<td>1931–2007</td>
<td>Truth to Rorty was what we all agree is truth, and what we agree is truth is more a reflection of circumstances than it is any absolute or objective reality outside mankind’s experience.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Alfred North Whitehead</td>
<td>1861–1947</td>
<td>The agnostic Whitehead believed in God — if a decidedly anemic God.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jacques Derrida</td>
<td>1930–2004</td>
<td>Derrida argued that most of us merely play language games. Every utterance is a move in a language game.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jean Baudrillard</td>
<td>1929–2007</td>
<td>Reality to Baudrillard was not necessarily defined by human language: it was defined by the public media.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jurgen Habermas</td>
<td>1929–</td>
<td>Habermas has resurrected the works of Plato and other metaphysicists and has taken philosophy away from language and communication and has taken it back to a discussion of rationality.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Viktor E. Frankl</td>
<td>1905–1997</td>
<td>Man was now the result of a purposeless and materialistic process that did not have him in mind.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Assignments

- Warm-up: Is it possible for Christians to lose the culture war? How?
- Student should complete Concept Builder 1-D.
- Student will re-write corrected copy of essay due tomorrow.

America obtains most of its worldviews from movies. Check the worldviews represented in the following popular movies. There will be multiple correct answers.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Movie</th>
<th>Theism</th>
<th>Deism</th>
<th>Romanticism</th>
<th>Naturalism</th>
<th>Realism</th>
<th>Extentialism</th>
<th>Absurdism</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Bambi</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Titanic</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Toy Story</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lion King</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Sound of Music</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Incredibles</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Recreate this chart with your responses on a separate sheet of paper, define the basic influences that develop your personal worldview:

Determine if these sources influence you in positive or negative ways.

Based on the worldview chart, develop your own system to determine the worldview of the notions and beliefs you come across each day through various media and personal interactions. Remember, everyone has a worldview by which they interpret the world.
Assignments

- Warm-up: Besides Christian theism, what is the most appealing worldview to you?
- Student should complete Concept Builder 1-E.
- Essay is due. Students should take the chapter 1 test.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Books</th>
<th>Theism</th>
<th>Deism</th>
<th>Romanticism</th>
<th>Naturalism</th>
<th>Realism</th>
<th>Extentialism</th>
<th>Absurdism</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Romeo and Juliet</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Johnny Tremain</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Walden</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Call of the Wild</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Poems by Robert Frost</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Book of Job (Bible)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Chapter 2

The New Land to 1750:
Puritanism & Native American Voices

First Thoughts Puritanism was a religious reform movement in the late 16th and 17th centuries that sought to “purify” the Church of England of remnants of Roman Catholicism. A radical form of Puritanism was Separatism, embraced by the Pilgrims. Puritans became noted in the 17th century for a spirit of moral and religious earnestness that affected their whole way of life, and they sought to make their lifestyle the pattern for the whole new world. Their culture, art and literature, then, reflect this earnestness and the reader will experience anew the vitality and pathos of a people mostly misunderstood. They were, in short, the very antithesis of the modern penchant toward facileness and duplicity. They were on, as historian Perry Miller explains, “an errand in the wilderness.” (Perry Miller, Errand in the Wilderness, Cambridge, MA: Harvard University Press, 1956.). But this was not a vacant wilderness. It was full of rich people groups and civilizations. We will examine both streams in this chapter on Puritan and Native American literature.

Chapter Learning Objectives In chapter 2 we will look more closely at the writings of William Bradford and Edward Taylor. We will look at Mourt’s Relations, the Mayflower Compact, and a portion of a speech by John Winthrop. Next, we will examine Native American literature, including Creation Narratives and a portion of the Iroquois Constitution. We will be amazed again at the beginnings that so richly blessed our great nation.

As a result of this chapter study you will be able to . . .

1. Understand what William Bradford’s view of nature was.
2. Compare and contrast Edward Taylor’s poetry with British metaphysical poetry.
4. Compare and contrast Native American views of mankind with biblical views
5. Analyze J.I. Packer’s views of Puritanism.
6. Speculate upon ways that Europeans and Native Americans could have coexisted better.

Weekly Essay Options: Begin on page 274 of the Teacher Guide.

Reading ahead: No readings are necessary for chapter 2. Students should review Jonathan Edwards, A Treatise Concerning Religious Affections (Philadelphia, PA: Printed for Mathew Carey, 1794) for chapter 3.
The Puritan Separatists, incorrectly called Pilgrims by later generations, were members of a religious sect called Puritans. They separated from the Church of England and thus were called Separatist Puritans. Other Puritans — who settled in the Boston area — sought to purify the church, not to withdraw from it. They were merely called Puritans. The Separatists included those who settled at Plymouth, Massachusetts in 1620. The Puritans settled in Boston in 1630.

The Plymouth settlers included both religious saints — the Separatist Puritans — and secular adventurers. The Puritans as well as the Separatist Puritans, then, were fervently religious people with a firm belief in God's omnipotence and in His abiding love. In this section we will look at several examples of Puritan literature. Most of us think of Puritans as colorless, unhappy, stuffy white-collared, black-coated, frowning saints. Nothing could be further from the truth. They were fun-loving, active people whose love of life was surpassed only by their love of God. Actually, the Puritan civilization was a successful marriage between cultural sonority and Christian devotion.

Puritanism, a movement arising within the Church of England in the latter part of the 16th century, sought to carry the reformation of that church beyond the point the early Anglican or Church of England had reached. The Church of England was attempting to establish a middle course between Roman Catholicism and the ideas of the Protestant reformers. This was unacceptable to a growing number of Puritan reformers, who wanted the Church of England to reject Anglicanism and embrace Calvinism. The term “Puritanism” was also used in a broader sense to refer to attitudes and values considered characteristic of these radical reformers. Thus, the Separatists in the 16th century, the Quakers in the 17th century, and Nonconformists after the Restoration were called Puritans, although they were no longer part of the established church. For our purposes, though, we will refer to the Puritans in two ways: Puritans and Pilgrims.

Like the Puritan Separatists, the Puritans of Boston in 1630 arrived in Massachusetts Bay. They had sailed to America to worship God freely. The Puritans did not desire to separate themselves from the Church of England but, rather, hoped to reform it. Nonetheless, the notions of freedom and equality, so precious to later New England patriots, were completely foreign to Puritan leaders. The leaders of the Massachusetts Bay enterprise never intended their colony to be a bastion of freedom and tolerance in the New World; rather, they intended it to be a “City on a Hill,” a model of Christian felicity and enthusiasm.

“City Upon a Hill,” a speech by Massachusetts Bay’s first governor, John Winthrop, in 1630 is a remarkable testimony to the spiritual roots of our country.

Now the onely way to avoyde this shipwracke and to provide for our posterity is to followe the Counsell of Micah, to doe Justly, to love mercy, to walke humbly with our
God, for this end, wee must be knitt together in this worke as one man, wee must entertaine each other in brotherly Affeccon, wee must be willing to abridge our selves of our superfluities, for the supply of others necessities, wee must uphold a familiar Commerce together in all meekenes, gentlenes, patience and liberallity, wee must delight in eache other, make others Condicions our owne rejoynce together, mourn e other, labour, and suffer together, alwayes haveing before our eyes our Commission and Community in the worke, our Community as members of the same body, soe shall wee kepe the unitie of the spirit in the bond of peace, the Lord will be our God and delight to dwell among us, as his owne people and will command a blessing upon us in all our wayes, soe that wee shall see much more of his wisdome power goodnes and truthe then formerly wee have beene acquainted with, wee shall finde that the God of Israel is among us, when tenn of us shall be able to resist a thousand of our enemies, when hee shall make us a prayse and glory, that men shall say of succeeding plantacions: the lord make it like that of New England: for wee must Consider that wee shall be as a City upon a Hill, the eies of all people are upon us; soe that if wee shall deale falsely with our god in this worke wee have undertaken and soe cause him to withdrawe his present help from us, wee shall be made a story and a byword through the world, wee shall open the mouthes of enemies to speake evill of the wayes of god and all professours for Gods sake; wee shall shame the faces of many of gods worthy servants, and cause theire prayers to be turned into Cursses upon us till wee be consumed out of the good land whether wee are going: And to shutt upp this discourse with that exhortacion of Moses that faithfull servant of the Lord in his last farewell to Israel Deut. 30. Beloved there is now sett before us life, and good, deathe and evill in that wee are

Commaunded this day to love the Lord our God, and to love one another to walke in his wayes and to keepe his Commandements and his Ordinance, and his lawes, and the Articles of our Covenant with him that wee may live and be multiplyed, and that the Lord our God may blesse us in the land whether wee goe to possesse it: But if our heartes shall turne away soe that wee will not obey, but shall be seduced and worshipp other Gods our pleasures, and proffits, and serve them, it is propounded unto us this day, wee shall surely perishe out of the good Land whether wee passe over this vast Sea to possesse it;

Therefore lett us choose life, that wee, and our Seed, may live; by obeying his voyce, and cleaving to him, for hee is our life, and our prosperity (theroadupward.com/archives/1889).
Assignments

- Warm-up: When you hear the word “Puritan” what do you think?
- Student should complete Concept Builder 2-A.
- Students should review the required reading(s) before the assigned chapter begins.
- Teachers may want to discuss assigned reading(s) with students.
- Teachers shall assign the required essay. The rest of the essays can be outlined, answered with shorter answers, discussed, or skipped.
- Students will review all readings for chapter 2.

Read the excerpt of History of Plimoth Plantation by William Bradford, then answer the following questions.

| | |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1</td>
<td>What is the narrative technique? What are advantages and disadvantages of using this narrative technique?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2</td>
<td>Who is the speaker and what can you surmise about his character?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3</td>
<td>Predict what will happen when the Pilgrims land on Cape Cod.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4</td>
<td>What is the setting and is the setting important?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5</td>
<td>How does Bradford present the Native Americans?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6</td>
<td>How reliable or credible is this narrator? Defend your answer.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>